WHAT IS THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN PRX INTIMA PERFEXION AND PRX DERM PERFEXION?

Intima has the same key ingredients as Derm Perfexion (TCA 33%, Hydrogen Peroxide, Kojic Acid), but they are different formulations. Intima is specifically formulated for the most delicate intimate areas. The exact formulation is proprietary. There is a difference in protocol, timing of treatments, application and home care.

PRICING:

Recommended Minimum $250 per treatment or $1000 for series

WHAT IS THE HOME CARE PRODUCT FOR PRX INTIMA PERFEXION?

Intima's home care is the Tone Beautifying Topical Serum For Face And Body. It is formulated specifically to have a lightening, brightening and tightening anti-aging effect on external delicate areas, perianal area, mammary areola and axilla.

It is formulated to lighten discolored skin and reduce excessive skin pigmentation of external delicate areas.

Its formulation contains ferulic acid, alpha-lipoic acid, gladbridin, aminoethylphosphinic acid, lactoferrin, niacinamide and tranexamic acid, active elements which continue and maintain the lightening effect of the treatment.

WHAT ARE STORAGE / REFRIGERATION REQUIREMENTS? WHAT IF THE PRX ARRIVED FROM FEDEX AND THE PRX IS WARM OR VERY WARM?

PRX PROVIDER INSURANCE

We would suggest using a professional insurance provider that covers medical grade chemical peels. Although PRX doesn't behave like a traditional TCA chemical peel, it contains TCA 33% as a key ingredient so it likely would fall under the same category with your insurance provider.

You may be better off getting higher coverage for the nominal extra cost, so if there's ever an event you will be covered. As we all know, insurance companies look for ways to get out of covering, so it is better to pay a little more to ensure coverage. As an FYI, this is feedback from our providers, we are not in the insurance business and are not legal advisors. So please know that we are just passing on general industry knowledge. Please also check with your appropriate business contacts for advice specific to your practice and liability.
